Study to Delay Industrial Reconversion

HOISTING OF GO AHEAD SIGN TO BE DEFERRED

Military Situation In 30 Days Will Govern Final Decision

WAR "SABOTAGE" FEARED

Munitions Plants Seen As Likely Victims Of Shift In Workers

WASHINGTON, July 12 — Industrial reconversion faced at least a month's delay today with the situation to be re-examined in mid-August to determine whether it will be feasible in the light of the then existing military conditions.

Contrary to an official WPB announcement that an order "will be issued" on August 15 enabling certain manufacturers to make civilian items now banned or rigidly restricted, it was learned that its issuance might again be deferred.

The full War Production Board, compromising the dispute which had raged for three weeks on reconversion, agreed today that the so-called "spot" authorization order will not be issued before August 15. No definite commitment was made as to the actual date of the issuance.

Hence, Army and Navy leaders, who opposed its issuance on July 1 and won a six-week's delay, may feel that the military situation in mid-August calls for further postponement. They have opposed any relaxation of WPB controls until Germany is near collapse, fearing a breakdown in vital war production.

The "spot" order is the key implementing the fight of WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson's reconversion program of four orders, and without it there will be no real increase in the output of civilian goods. It empowers WPB field offices to authorize firms which have facilities and manpower not (Continued on Page Two)

IL DUCE IN ON VATICAN RAID

INS Learns How Fascists Sought To Injure Cause Of Allies

ROME, Italy, July 12—Factual evidence showing that Mussolini himself was "in" on the night bombing of the Vatican November 5, 1943—something the Holy See has often intimated, but never openly declared—was furnished to International News Service today.

It can now be revealed that the "culprit" plane was a Savoia Marchetti 61, and that it was piloted by a Sgt. Renato Parmigiani and finally, that it took off from the Fascist airfield at Padova.

It is significant that the criminal attack which Pope Pius himself labelled as "deliberately prepared, but with little courage and less success and hidden under the veil of anonymity," was the first mission of the Republican Fascist air force.

Childish Undertaking

Mussolini and his minions made a childish attempt to camouflage the ignominious debut by using captured British bombs, but no one fell for it and the Pope has been revealed to have "known" the name of the culprits in the space of a few hours after the attack was carried out.

Resurrected Fascists must have had some misgivings on the "cover plan" which had been adopted and it was their own behavior that evening, night and the next day which cast the first suspicion on them.

The Nazi-controlled Rome radio announced at 9 p. m. that night that "a most important" statement was about to be issued. It repeated the announcement every half hour. The radio audience increased with each alert so that by 1 a. m. practically everyone who owned a set or could get near one was standing by.

The preparation had been so "thorough" that when the announcement came listeners could not but have the sensation that the Nazi Fascists were behind it, somehow.

As the hours went by the sen- (Continued on Page Two)

HUN RADIO SAYS GRIM BATTLES RAGE IN FRANCE

LONDON, July 12—The German-operated radio said today that grim, ding-dong battles raged in Normandy this morning.

Fighting was said to be especially bitter south of the forest of Mont Castre and also north of St. Lo.

NO SPEAKING TOURS

President Expected To Solicit Support From White House

WASHINGTON, July 12—President Roosevelt was ready today to go before the American people as a fourth term candidate on a streamlined "win-the-war and win-the-peace" platform.

Having, in dramatic and typical Rooseveltian manner, decided the burning question of his own political intentions with a forthright declaration that he will serve again, if elected, Mr. Roosevelt left only the choice of his running mate to be solved before the Democratic national convention meets July 19 in Chicago.

The answer to this second question was expected not to be postponed very long.

Reports were current in Washington political circles today that Mr. Roosevelt would shortly indicate his choice for the vice-presidency.

Wallace Favored

Whether the chief executive will again give the nod to Vice-President Henry A. Wallace was a secret still held by the President, but there were strong indications that Wallace will be his choice—a selection, however, which would not be insisted on if the convention overwhelmingly demanded that another candidate be named.

President Roosevelt, after telling his news conference Tuesday morning that he will accept the Democratic nomination and will serve if elected, held a two-hour luncheon conference with Vice-President Wallace.

Mystery Conference

Wallace's appearance at the White House in time for luncheon with the President was unhesitated and an air of mystery surrounded the conference.

Wallace's call did not appear on the President's regularly announced daily calling list, and the White House professed to know nothing of his luncheon with the President.

Nevertheless, it was reliably learned that Wallace did attend the luncheon and that he came and (Continued on Page Two)

THOMPSON CASH ATTACKED FROM MANY ANGLES

CHICAGO, July 12—Claimants to the million and a half dollars in cash left by the late William Hale Thompson, former Chicago mayor, are showing up in scores of places in the United States and Canada, James W. Breen, attorney for the estate, said today.

He described many of the claims contained in letters he has received as fantastic. A man in Wisconsin wrote that once he saved Thompson from a possibly fatal nosebleed by pressing a dime under his nose and that Thompson had promised to provide for him in his will.

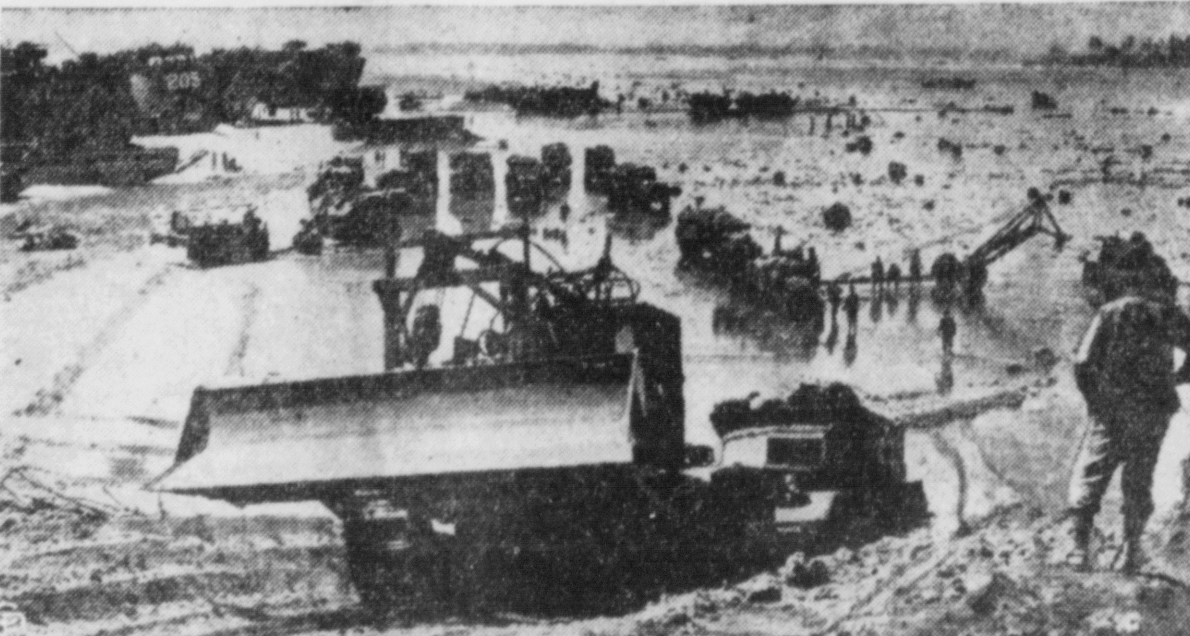

A Canadian woman said she might be the former mayor's foster-daughter and that a $200,000 share of the estate would be about right.

A Louisiana correspondent suggested that Thompson could have been the descendant of a relative who disappeared during the Revolutionary war and that Thompson therefore might have been some kin of the writer.

Breen estimated Thompson was worth about $4,000,000 at the beginning of his first term as mayor. He said the present estate would be about $850,000 after the deduction of state and federal inheritance taxes.

Thompson died childless and the entire personal estate will go to his widow.

YANK ENGINEERS READY SAIPAN FOR OUR BOMBERS

BULLDOZERS AND OTHER CONSTRUCTION MACHINES are being used here by American aviation engineers to build roads to an area on Saipan which will be transformed into a huge airfield. SAIPAN MAY BE YANK AIR BASE

Assaults On Marianas Probably Originate On Captured Island

PEARL HARBOR, July 12—Indications that United States war-planes already are striking at Jap islands in the Marianas from captured Saipan were seen today in the announcement by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz that "shore based fighters" attacked Pagan island last Friday.

Pagan island is approximately 200 miles north of Saipan, where American Marines and Doughboys seized the vital Isely airfield during the first few days of bloody combat on the strategic enemy island.

The fighter sweeps over Pagan, Admiral Nimitz reported, were resisted by intense anti-aircraft fire, but no enemy planes were encountered in the air.

The admiral's latest communication also announced that small groups of Japs on Saipan made suicidal attacks Sunday against American forces mopping up remnants of the enemy garrison on the northern part of the island. The Japs were either killed or forced into hiding.

Many enemy survivors who were driven into the sea last Saturday night were discovered in the hulks of ships wrecked off shore and were killed or captured. An undetermined number found swimming in the sea was taken prisoner.

Light surface units of the Pacific fleet, Nimitz reported, continued shelling objectives on Guam island through Sunday.

In the North Pacific, Navy patrol bombers of fleet air wing four struck Jap installations on Paramushiro and Shimushu islands in the Kuriles before dawn Monday, igniting several fires.

Only light anti-aircraft fire was encountered over both targets and all our planes returned without damage.

In the Central Pacific, Liberators of the Seventh Army Air Force delivered another blow against Truk, hitting anti-aircraft positions on Moen island. Jap defenders of the atoll sent up "meager" ground fire and no interception was attempted.

By-passed enemy bases in the Marshalls also were pestered Sunday by Army Mitchells and Marine dive bombers.

"ALLIED SOURCE" CONFIRMS HUN PEACE FEELERS

LONDON, July 12—A London Daily News Chronicle dispatch from Madrid quoted "reliable allied sources" today as having "confirmed" reports that Germany had put out at least half a dozen peace feelers to the Allies since February.

These feelers, it was said, followed the arrival in Lisbon of Gen. Nikolaus Von Falkenhausen, commander-in-chief of German occupation forces in Norway. All of them failed, the dispatch said.

His father and his wife Mrs. Fern Downs left Sunday to be with him. His address is Pvt. Thomas William Downs, ASN 35845166, Moore General hospital, ward 207, Swannanoa, N. C.

In his letter he states that she was asleep when the wreck occurred and that all his belongings were destroyed. He said he was very glad to have escaped with his life although he was very uncomfortable when he was writing the letter.

FLYING BOMBS SHOT DOWN BY BRITISH PATROL

LONDON, July 12—A number of German flying bombs were shot down in daylight today by Allied fighter planes patrolling the skies, over the channel and Southern England.

Although the pilotless missiles were hurled at southern counties during the night, causing some deaths and damage, London had a respite from flying bomb assaults for the second successive night. Monday night was the first in 26 that no robot bomb fell in the London area.

The air ministry said that during yesterday afternoon and also in the evening Royal Air Force heavy bombers, escorted by Spitfire fighters, had attacked flying bomb installations in Northern France.

In other evening attacks American Marauders and Havocs, operating in strength and escorted by fighters, attacked German fuel stores near Fiers.

MAIL HANDLER SENTENCED AS MEANEST THIEF

NEW YORK, July 12 — Harry Miller, 44, a post office employee for 14 years, began a six-month prison term today for committing what Federal Judge Stephen W. Brennan termed "the meanest petty crime I know of." Miller robbed a blind candy seller.

The mail handler who was trapped by marked money, had for some time "volunteered" to help Frank Dunkler, a blind man who sells candy and cigarettes to postal employees at New York's main post office.

When Dunkler noted that receipts were falling off, he notified a postal inspector who planted the marked money. When Miller was not arrested immediately, he fled to Los Angeles where the law caught up with him.

MAURICE TOBIN DOWNS HURLEY

New Deal-CIO Candidate For Governor Wins But Others Lose

BOSTON, July 12 — The New Deal-CIO coalition, nominated Mayor Maurice Tobin of Boston for governor in the Democratic primaries, but was being routed today in three congressional and one senatorial contests in Massachusetts where it had concentrated against anti-administration candidates.

The only solace for the administration came in the gubernatorial contest where Tobin in 1,400 precincts out of 1,800 received 103,000 votes to 63,000 for State Treasurer Francis X. Hurley, an outspoken critic of the New Deal.

However, in the contest for the senatorial nomination Mayor Curran of Cambridge, who campaigned on an anti-administration platform, was victorious over three other candidates, including former Congressman Richard Russell, the New Deal-CIO choice.

In the three congressional fights, Congressman James M. Curley won handily over ex-Congressman Thomas H. Eliot in the 11th district, Congressman Philip J. Philbin of Clinton won over P. Eugene Casey in the Third district, and William A. Carey won over Edward Mullenwey in the 10th district.

Congressman John McCormack, Democratic floor leader, won an anticipated easy victory.

ACCORD NEAR ON POST WAR BANK PROJECT

BRETTOBX, N. H., July 12—With only a week to go, the signposts today indicated that the delegates of 44 nations assembled here at the United Nations monetary and financial conference were near agreement as to the desirability of launching a $8,500,000,000 international monetary fund and a $10,000,000,000 bank for reconstruction and development.

Although there are surface indications of differences, observers were convinced that the conference would adjourn with at least a semblance of unity.

When commission I, dealing with the fund meets tomorrow, the managers of the conference are hopeful that steps will be taken to launch the fund. Of course, any "understanding" reached here is subject to ratification by congress and the legislative bodies of other participating countries.

Farmers Scan Skies For Rain

Mercury Again Soars To 100 As Pastures And Crops Burn

Circleville and Pickaway county residents continued to swelter Wednesday while farmers anxiously scanned the skies for signs of rain.

Tuesday the local temperature reached 100 degrees for the second time this year. June 28 the all-time record for the month was broken when the mercury soared to the century mark. Tuesday night's low was 75 degrees, making it the hottest night of the summer.

Pasture lands are in bad shape because of the lack of rain. Some are reported "burned out" and others are expected to be ruined if there is no rain soon.

The early sweet corn crop has been ruined by the dry weather. Later sweet corn is reported in good condition and good yields are expected if there is rain soon.

A state survey reveals Ohio crop production on the decrease as compared to last year. With the exception of Winter wheat, which is much better than last year, all other crops have dropped considerably as a result of the dry weather and manpower shortage.

A government crop report states the animal feed situation remains gloomy. The tame hay crop is expected to be much less than 1943. Alfalfa acreage has been reduced 11 percent from last year, the report reveals. Grain stocks are also below the stocks of July 1, 1943. Corn, oats and old wheat all have decreased. Other crops showing decreases include potatoes, oats and barley.

JAPANESE GIRL PET PATIENT OF YANK DOCTORS

CHARON - KANO, SAIPAN, MARIANAS ISLANDS — (Delayed)—Yamamoto, a diminutive 13-year-old Japanese girl, is the favorite patient of doctors and medical corpsmen of this Marine-captured Jap hospital. She ignores the war and calmly reads a Japanese version of a Peter Rabbit comic book while doctors marvel that she is alive after five days spent in Saipan harbor with only a life preserver to keep her afloat.

That is only one of the mysteries concerning Yamamoto, but the story that she tells interpreters seems to jibe. She seems unconcerned about the whole thing.

The known facts are that she was picked up by a patrol craft 20 miles at sea on June 17. She was brought ashore and sent to the hospital, where it was found that she was suffering only slightly from exposure, mostly sunburn which had blistered her lips, her face, and arms.

How she stayed five days in the ship-packed harbor without being discovered and how she came to be on a life jacket 20 miles from the beach is unexplained.

Everyone wonders except Yamamoto. She's busy reading her funny book.

PLANE CRASHES TRAILER CAMP; 12 DIE; 21 HURT

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., July 12—An Army plane that smashed into the Westbrook war workers' trailer camp in South Portland left 12 dead and 21 injured in its wake today in a disaster that left 26 trailers destroyed or damaged.

The plane, which was based in Louisiana, and reported on a routine mission, crashed with such force through the camp that bodies of the victims were tossed scores of yards in many directions. The plane also started raging fires in the camp which were fought for more than an hour by firemen from South Portland, Portland and other nearby communities.

Among the dead were four children and two members of the plane's crew.

High State Of Alarm In East Prussia Signals Approach Of Reds

BULLETIN

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, July 12—Hard-hitting American troops slashed their way into the outskirts of vital St. Lo and the town of Lessay today and General Eisenhower's headquarters announced German armored strength in Normandy is being steadily worn down.

An INS dispatch from the Cherbourg peninsula, front placed Americans only one and one half miles from St. Lo with sloping ground now lying between them and their objective.

Reconnaissance pilots returning from the field said American infantry now is "steamrolling" over the heavy German defenses.

More than 20 German tanks have been destroyed by Americans in the area north of St. Lo during the day, headquarters said.

By International News Service

The bitterest battles since D-day were reported raging today at both ends of the French Normandy battlefield as German Field Marshal Erwin Rommel threw in strong reserve forces in his efforts to check the American drive on St. Lo and the British-Canadian push around Caen.

Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's First U. S. Army gained more than a mile in its drive toward St. Lo from the north despite savage Nazi resistance. Some American units were said to be able to look down on the vital communications center from nearby high ground.

Battlefront dispatches, not confirmed at Allied headquarters, said the Yanks had driven forward two miles since yesterday and had bypassed and isolated the German garrison at St. Andre Lepine.

Communicate No. 73 from Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced that violent enemy counter-attacks all along the battlefield had been contained and in some sectors the Allies had improved their positions, despite stubborn German opposition.

Yanks Advance

One American column pushed southward from La Haye Du Puits at the western end of the front toward the town of Lessay, six miles distant.

But in the Caen area, where some of the heaviest fighting of the campaign in Northern France is under way, the Allies apparently had been stopped in most sectors. Southwest of Caen, the British still clung to Hill 112 after it had changed hands several times in savage fighting. The Germans still hold Maltot, southwest of Caen.

International News Service staff correspondent Clark Lee, in a dispatch from the front lined at 10 a. m. French time reported that the American lines moved generally forward toward Saint Lo today, with the fighting swirling around numerous isolated pockets of enemy resistance.

Huns Hold Forts

Lee said the Nazis are still in possession of such strongpoints as La Meauffe, Saint Andre De Laigne and Pont Hebert.

At the other end of the European battlefield, the Russians drove deeper into Lithuania and steadily neared East Prussia after liberating another 400 towns and villages (Continued on Page Two) went through one of the private White House entrances not open to public view.

The lengthy luncheon conference followed a two-hour meeting the previous day in which Wallace reported to the President on his special mission to China and Russian Siberia.

The Far Eastern trip itself was regarded here as a definite build-up for Wallace as a running mate for the President again next November. Mr. Roosevelt has told recent White House callers that the vice-presidential candidate should be a man with a broad understanding of international affairs, and that Wallace fits this picture.

May Give In

There remained the possibility, however, that Mr. Roosevelt might accede to the clamor of certain state delegations, notably in the South, that have been unopposed to vote against Wallace. It was felt that he would not insist on any man in the face of a wave of opposition that might prejudice party solidarity.

Should Wallace be cast overboard, the second place on the Democratic ticket is expected to go to either Sen. Aiken W. Barkley, of Kentucky, the senate majority leader who will nominate Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term; Sen. Harry S. Truman, of Missouri; War Mobilizer James P. Byrnes, or Gov. Robert S. Kerr, of Oklahoma, who will deliver the keynote address at the Democratic convention.

Aside from the vice-presidential issue, Mr. Roosevelt, in a few terse, well-chosen sentences made it amply clear in his fourth term announcement just what sort of campaign he will conduct and what the platform will be.

The President emphatically ruled out a campaign of partisan politics.

"If the people elect me, I will serve, but I would not run in the usual partisan political sense," he declared.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to let his record both in peace and in war stand before the country. He is not expected to make any speaking tours about the country. His campaign, such as it may be, will be conducted from the White House and from his Hudson valley home at Hyde Park, N. Y. It is probable that he will make a very few radio fireside chats.

It is also likely that he will go abroad again in the late summer for another war conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill this time to England, with probably a trip to the American troops on the Normandy beachhead.

It is considered virtually certain that he will not go to the Democratic convention in Chicago, but instead will make his acceptance speech—if there is an acceptance speech—by radio.

It is not at all certain that the President will make an acceptance speech, but may, instead, let his letter to Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, of the Democratic national committee, in which he announced that he would accept the nomination and will serve, if elected, be his acceptance.

The general line of Mr. Roosevelt's indicated campaign strategy would follow somewhat the 1940 election test.

Then, he remained aloof in the White House, holding a few news conferences and making a few timely radio speeches. He also made an inspection tour of war plants over the nation, appearing in various cities through the West and Middle West. His movements, however, were cloaked in secrecy and it was not until the tour was completed that news stories describing the tour were made public.

Mr. Roosevelt sounded the keynote of the fourth term campaign in three hard-hitting sentences in sation became conviction and, the Fascist "bigwigs," fearing that they would be immediately unmasked, summoned "public" meetings in the well-known manner of ordering people to be present.

The list of orators is a long one. But the fact that the undersecretary to the presidency of the Council of the Fascist Republic—more briefly Mussolini's direct representative—was called on to squelch rumors that the bombing had been by a Fascist plane and that he declared that "no aviator of the resurgent air force of the Fascist Republic could have executed, as his first mission, such a low outrage" sheds some light on the criminal makeup of the men who have followed Mussolini.

It is now known that the Vatican has prepared a thorough report which it plans to release for publication sometime in the future, perhaps, at war's end. In it will be found, in addition to the evidence furnished International News Service, exact information on the men who developed the project.

CUTS JAIL SENTENCE

NEW YORK.—Franklin Carney, who studied law while a prisoner at Attica, has won a long fight for freedom. Carney was sentenced to serve 15 to 20 years in the Bronx County Court as a second offender, but expects to be out of jail in two months. In 1931 he was sentenced for the same length of time as a first offender. After studying law he challenged the court's right to sentence him as a first offender, insisting he should have been punished as a second offender. The charge was robbery. Under the original sentence he still has two years to serve. Under the new mandate he should be released, with normal time off for good behavior, in about two months.

Tatman, 30, Amanda soldier, seriously wounded in action June 1 while fighting in Italy was making normal improvement June 15, a letter from the War department informed his father, George Tatman of that village. The letter which came from the adjutant general's office, was dated July 7.

AT STATE MEETING

Ned Dresbach, deputy dealer of weights and measures was in Washington, C. H., Wednesday attending a state meeting of deputy sealers of weights and measures as well as county auditors. Forrest Short, county auditor was unable to attend.

CUTS JAIL SENTENCE

NEW YORK.—Franklin Carney, who studied law while a prisoner at Attica, has won a long fight for freedom. Carney was sentenced to serve 15 to 20 years in the Bronx County Court as a second offender, but expects to be out of jail in two months. In 1931 he was sentenced for the same length of time as a first offender. After studying law he challenged the court's right to sentence him as a first offender, insisting he should have been punished as a second offender. The charge was robbery. Under the original sentence he still has two years to serve. Under the new mandate he should be released, with normal time off for good behavior, in about two months.

First Army Smashes Ahead More Than Mile In St. Lo Sector in the 19th day of their great Summer offensive.

The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet, in an article reported by the OWI, said that the approach of the Russian armies has produced the "highest state of alarm" in East Prussia, where Nazi authorities were said to have closed the frontiers, mined all approaches and forbidden anyone to leave or enter the country without special permission.

Revolt Feared

These reports declared that some 300,000 foreign workers in East Prussian factories have been removed to the interior of Germany because it was feared they might "attack German troops in the back."

The German radio reported Allied bombers were over Southwestern and Western Germany. Nazi robot bombs continued to fall in Southern England during the night, but for the second night in succession none crashed in the London area.

In Italy American armored forces thrust to within eight miles of the Tyrrhenian port of Livorno (Leghorn) following the capture of the coastal town of Castiglione.

The Nazis were ousted from a number of hill positions east and west of Lajatico, on the approaches to Livorno, and heavy

Air Force Active

Planes of the Mediterranean Allied air force flew 800 sorties yesterday, hitting rail bridges in Northwestern Italy and rail yards at Alessandria. Fighter-bombers struck rail lines and rolling stock between Parma and Bologna, an airfield north of the La Spezia Naval base and road and gun positions in the Arezzo area. Offensive sweeps were also carried out against targets in Yugoslavia and Albania. Four Allied planes failed to return from these operations.

The British radio quoted Swiss reports as saying that Italian workers in the northern industrial city of Turin had battled German troops in the streets of the city, making it necessary for the Nazis to dispatch Elite Guards to the area to quell the outbreaks.

British press reports said that the Japanese were trying to acquire submarines from Germany for use in the Pacific war. According to the London Daily Sketch, a Jap naval mission in Berlin is attempting not only to obtain some of Germany's present U-boat production, but also hopes to get a large part of the Nazi's U-boat fleet when the war in Europe ends.

These reports said that in the event of defeat, Germany may try to hand over its submarine fleet to the Japs to prevent the Allies from gaining possession of it.

Check all ready-made garments and household articles before they are worn or used. Because of a dearth of skilled workers we may have to put up with some poor workmanship for the duration. So it is wise to strengthen any possible weak spots we find in new garments with a few stitches than to let them go until they need a great many stitches.

Midland Army Air Field, Midland, Tex. — Among the highly-skilled bombardier-navigators who received their commissions as second lieutenants and flight officers early in July from Col. Charles H. Downman, commanding officer of this key bombardier school, was Charles W. Styers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Styers, of 623 East Mound street.

Back of graduation lies 18 weeks of the Army Air Forces' toughest training, and combat practice that makes them real triple-threat members of the Air Forces deadly aerial fighting teams. They are skilled as aerial gunners; they have studied and practiced dead-reckoning navigation and have learned its application to the problems of bombing enemy targets. They have been schooled in meteorology, and have gone over maps, charts and aerial reconnaissance photographs of enemy territory until they are as familiar as the road map of Texas. They have been trained in the uses, and detection of camouflage. They have studied enemy ships, learned to identify instantly enemy aircraft.

Their training in the actual art of bombing has been the essence of thoroughness. They have become family-familiar with the tools of their trade, bombsights, planes, guns and bombs. They have each dropped enough practice bombs to get that science down habit-perfect. Finally, they spent long, hard-working days at a "combat camp" far out on the West Texas prairie, getting at first hand the feel of bombardier operations from a front-line airbase.

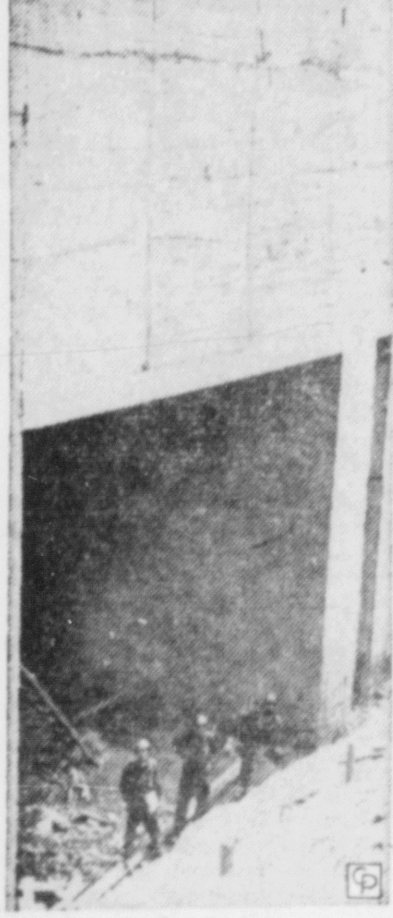

Now these young bombardier-navigators are ready for the final phase of their combat training in which they will take their places as key men in the aerial combat teams of the AAF.

Harvey Winn, Jr., has been promoted to the rank of corporal and has been transferred from Camp Bowie, Texas, to Camp Barkley, Texas. His new address is: Cpl. Harvey Winn, Jr., 35615577, Co. B, 60th Med. Training Bn., Camp Barkley, Texas.

LIBERTY SHIPS

THE Liberty ships are those slow fellows, built on standardized plans, welded where ships used to be laboriously put together by older methods of joinery and carpentry. Accidents have happened to some of them. There has been a growing feeling that they were not safe.

The Tacoma News-Tribune says it "has long been convinced that this lowly carrier of the American merchant marine has been target of a smear campaign." It was, therefore, relieved, to get the report of a House merchant marine subcommittee which has been studying them for a year, with special reference to the problem of plate fractures of welded ships.

Out of 2,570 Liberties built, finds this subcommittee, five have been lost. There have been 91 serious fractures, 120 potentially serious fractures. Eleven persons have been unaccounted for since they entered a lifeboat. No other lives lost. The plate fracture business is a real problem, for which no definite solution has yet been found. But the proportion of 211 fractures to 2,570 ships built is small. The proportion of ships lost, five to 2,570 is still smaller.

It is only too easy to draw general conclusions from a few isolated instances. Suspending judgment until the returns are all in is more just.

NAZI PRISONERS

NAZI soldiers have often annoyed their American captors by insolent talk and behavior. But they are not supermen, and there are limits to what they can stand in such fighting as they are now subjected to.

Of prisoners taken the other day in a battle for a chateau in Normandy, it is reported that the German officers waved white flags because "their troops ran off and deserted them." An English lieutenant reports the officers as "looking like ghosts." Their faces were white with terror and their eyes like red gimlet holes, after "three days and nights of hell." They finally decided to surrender because "there was no use of dying alone," and they had been sitting in a hole in the rain under a terrible shelling for 72 hours.

But here is a climax to the story. Said one of the Germans: "It was unbearable, even for the Fuehrer." To realistic Americans there is a wry laugh in that. What does Hitler know about fox holes and hunger and cold and wounds? He is always far from the battle.

As Milton observed, it is the nature of Providence "out of evil still to bring forth good."

Everything about war is hard, but by huffing and puffing we blow Hitler's house in, and spoil Tojo's toe-hold.

Row Over Vice Presidency
May Enliven Demo Meeting

Dixie Democrats Against Another Term for Wallace

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—"The Democratic national convention will be really exciting. There's going to be a big row over the vice-presidential nominee."

You hear this said almost verbatim in every group that gathers in the capital nowadays to talk about the next big goings-on in Chicago.

"Of course, President Roosevelt will try to make the convention nominate Henry Wallace a second time. . . . But the southern Democrats are up in arms. . . . And Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones means to keep his administration enemy, Wallace, out of the candidacy come what may."

"Uncle Jesse is not going to the convention. He will stay behind in Washington surrounded by even more long distance phones than usual and tell the southern boys and girls how to keep Henry out! That vice presidency row will be a swell show. . . ."

And so the talk goes. Yet another possibility of excitement is added to the convention forecass. . . . Who have the Democrats got to do a Clare Luce for them? The Democrats will just naturally have to have SOMEBODY to rival the Lady from Connecticut. For whether you liked her speech or not Mrs. Luce did supply the drama of the Republican convention. She was the theater of the meeting.

Will Helen Gahagan, Congressional candidate from California, be put on the speaker's rostrum to sway the delegates, to make them weep or rage while she uses her gifts as an actress in the Luce manner? Possibly so. Miss Gahagan (or Mrs. Melvyn Douglas, if you prefer) may be asked to turn the tide for Mr. Wallace. Miss Gahagan will be completely Rooseveltian in her convention behavior. Or the wife of the president may descend upon the stadium as

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

DEWEY SUPPORTER IN WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is not the easiest person to give advice to, but some of those around him are trying to figure out ways and means of telling him to keep his political enemies out of choice spots inside his own White House.

One man they have in mind is Fred Searls, Jr., who recently contributed $2,000 to the Dewey campaign, but who has an office inside the White House as the right-hand man of Justice Jimmy Byrnes and Will Clayton. He is No. 1 aide in the disposal of vital surplus war property for which all the big companies are scrambling.

Last week, Senator Scrugham of Nevada and his subcommittee on small mining business issued a scathing blast against Fred Searls, charging him with holding up the production of U. S. minerals for the benefit of big foreign mining firms. Searls is a heavy investor in mines in Africa and Canada which compete with American mines, and the committee's inference was that Searls was helping his own foreign companies.

Searls is the mainspring of the Newmont Mining Company, considered a J. P. Morgan concern, which controls 28 large mines in Africa, South America and the Orient. He is also a director of a half dozen other African, Canadian and Oriental mines.

SEARLS' INFLUENCE

Before coming over to the White House, Searls was with the WPB facilities bureau, where he could grant, or deny facilities to mining firms. The Senate committee, in criticizing him, quoted from a letter written soon after Pearl Harbor in which, as a WPB official, Searls opposed any increase in U. S. production of copper, zinc and other scarce metals.

"This," according to the Senate committee, "was certainly placing the cart before the horse with a vengeance. Unfortunately, this Searls policy, which could only have been based on a short-war viewpoint, was adopted by and steadily influenced many of the War Production Board mineral divisions. . . its committees and its successors to date."

"As production adviser to office of War Mobilization Director Byrnes," continued the Senate report, "it is not to be expected that Searls' influence has been less than it was in his previous inferior position."

Actually, Searls, simultaneously with being one of the ten largest contributors to Dewey, has been promoted. He is now right-hand man to Will Clayton in disposing of surplus properties. Working closely with him is another J. P. Morgan man and an official in the Newmont Mining Company, Franz Schneider.

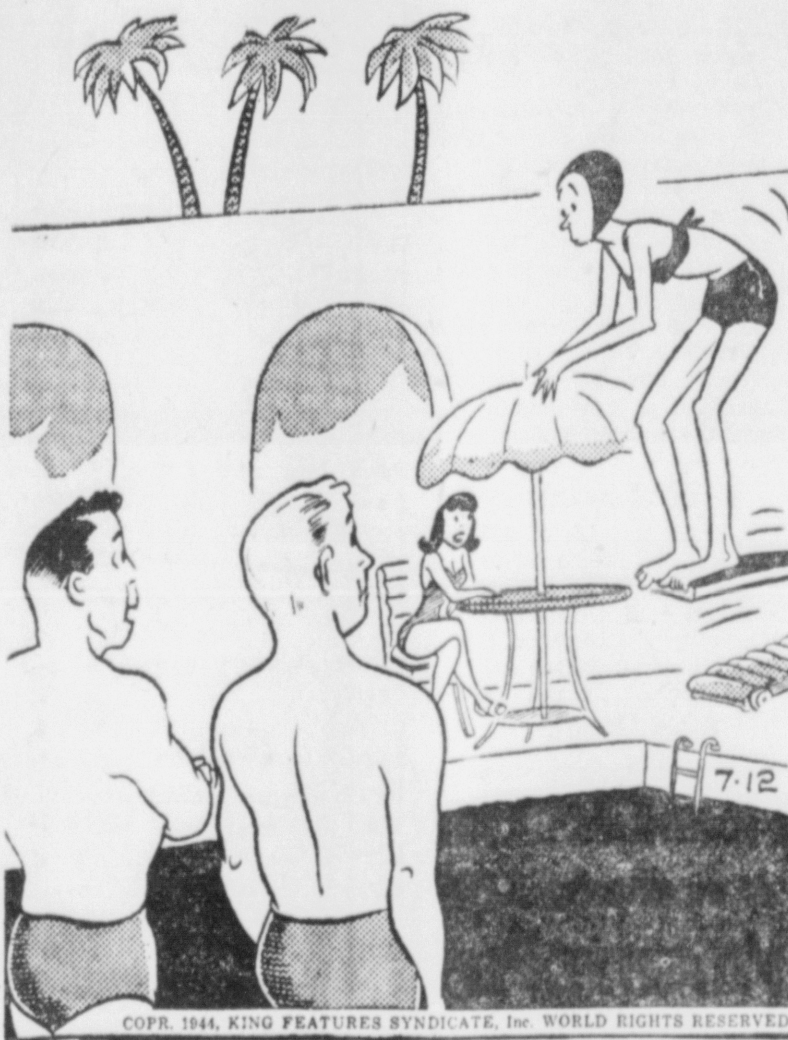

Acting with Clayton, former head of the world's largest cotton firm, these two have virtual final word over what is to become of U. S. Government war plants that have cost the taxpayers millions.

"OLD ARMY" ARMSTRONG

When U. S. B-29's rained explosives on Japan's steel works, there was a story behind the scenes regarding the officer who trained those expert pilots.

That officer is Brig. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, one of the most daring and best-loved officers ever to fly a plane over Germany. For months, Armstrong, based in England, was in command of raid after (Continued on Page Eight)

An Annual Invasion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

ABOUT A month from now over most parts of the United States an invading army of pollens will strike giving woe and discomfort to about a tenth of the population.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The date of this invasion will be no surprise. It has happened regularly for as many years back as the oldest inhabitant can count.

Is there any defense that can be made against it? Well, that is a real puzzle to most of the sufferers as they know only too well.

The students of Hay Fever have listed a good many plants which can cause this cursed malady, but for all but the rare cases the offender for the fall type of Hay Fever is the ragweed. It is the one which begins to cast its light yellow pollen grains in the air on August 14th at 6 a.m. in the morning.

They are light enough to float as high as seven steeps and a steady wind will carry them hundreds of miles.

Change of Climate

One answer to the problem of how to repel this invasion is climate. In general the mountains and the seashore and the Northern Lakes and Canada are safe refuges for the afflicted. California and the Pacific Coast generally are pretty safe. They claim to have some Hay Fever occasionally in California, but it is only to Hay Fever. It is nothing like the hay fever of the Mississippi Valley and the Middle West.

Another answer which I advocated for many years is to cut ragweed plants about this time of year. I have been argued down on it from communities where they have tried it but I still am not convinced because I do not believe it has ever been given a thorough trial. Of course it is impossible this year, but some day we might give the Japanese internees a whirl at it.

Lastly, there is the method of immunization by pollen vaccines.

This has gone through various stages of opinion among the experts. First it was advocated that the course of increasingly strong suspensions of the pollen be given, starting several months before the expected seasonal attack. All sorts of exaggerated claims were made for this by the optimists among the allergists, but in general it seemed to fail in about 90 per cent of cases.

Coseasonal Vaccinations

Then a coseasonal set of vaccinations was advocated, beginning the course of hypodermic injections a month or a week before, or even right with, the onset of symptoms. This didn't seem to be very logical, but it worked in practice better than the long pre-seasonal vaccinations.

The theory that emerged from these experiences, which is the theory now held, is that it is possible to produce immunity to Hay Fever infestation, but that the immunity is very short lived. The immunity acquired by the pre-seasonal shots wore out before the Hay Fever season began. It is considered that the best hope consists of all year round immunization carried out for several years which it is said results in a permanent state of relief.

More practical and in line with this same kind of theory is the "rush desensitization" method of Freeman. This attempts to build up rapid immunity just before and during the early days of the season by injections given at very brief intervals. The vaccines can be given by this "rush" method by mouth. It seems the most helpful of the practical methods suggested.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
F. R.—What does a basal metabolism test of the thyroid gland determine? Is it a reliable test?

Answer: The basal metabolism test measures the amount of oxygen used by the body in a given time at rest. It measures thyroid activity because the thyroid governs the consumption of oxygen. It is a very reliable test.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

SYNOPSIS

Mary Norman, attractive widow and successful decorator, was delighted when Judith Lambert, daughter of an old friend, dropped in to see her. Judith, whose home is in California, is en route to Maine for the summer. The families had been neighbors before Judith's father died. She asked for Mary's son, Dr. Matthew Norman, adding, "He was my first crush—but he didn't know I existed." Mary told her that Matthew plans to have his own office soon. Judith promised to stop off again on her way home in the fall. As Mary dressed for dinner with Lynn Mortimer, long her devoted friend, she indulged in a little mental matchmaking anent Judith and her son. . . . For twenty years Lynn's wife has been a mental patient and for almost as long as that he has been in love with Mary. Although they never discussed it, Mary is aware of his love but feels there is no room in her busy life for anyone except Matthew. Mary assumes Matthew is detained at the hospital when he does not come home for dinner.

CHAPTER FOUR

They went into the living room and Lynn asked, "Play to me, Mary, won't you?"

She played, her hands gentle and loving on the keys, very strong. He said, not for the first time, during a moment of something which was like a silver silence just pierced faintly with sound, "What a pity that you didn't go on with it."

"But I fell in love, I married."

He said, "You could have still gone on."

"I suppose so," she told him; "there was money enough, at first. But there was also Matthew. I couldn't bear to turn him over to nurses."

The bell rang sharply and Kate soon returned; she had a telegram in her hand.

Mary took it and sat there on the piano bench, her fingers touching the unopened message with the utmost reluctance.

Lynn asked, "Is anything wrong?"

"No," she told him; "it's probably a client who has changed her mind. They always do. It's just that I hate telegrams. I dread them."

She opened the wire and sat quite motionless. Lynn watched the color fade until the rouge on her lips stood out red, and vivid. He said, "Mary, my dear, has anything happened to Matthew?"

After a moment she spoke. "No. . . or rather, yes. What we were talking about. He's—Matthew is married."

"Married," repeated Lynn incredulously. "Good Lord! Where—when—to whom?"

Mary rose from the piano bench, walked toward the couch and sat down on it as though, suddenly, her knees were weak.

Lynn, following her, grumbling, "Ungrateful young cub, I could wring his neck. I—"

"Oh, hush," she said, "you don't know the least thing about it. I'm not upset, I'm not angry. I'm just startled. . . and trying to adjust myself. I know the girl. He's brought her here several times. Her name is Irene Murray and she is a charge nurse at the hospital. She's a charming, gentle, attractive girl and I like her very much. I've known—or guessed—for some time that she was in love with him. I didn't know—that he. . ."

He asked, "Then why the secrecy?"

She said, "The wire simply says that Irene is on vacation, and that he managed a day off and they drove to Maryland."

"Why couldn't they have done it properly?" Lynn wanted to know. "After he was through with the hospital! Hasn't the girl any parents?"

"Just an aunt, I think," said Mary, trying to remember, "out in South Dakota."

"It's crazy," declared Lynn bluntly. "I suppose you'll go on supporting two, as you have one."

She said, after a moment, "There'll be enough. Naturally I made Matthew an allowance while he was interning and I had expected to continue augmenting it. Of course—when he set up his own practice. This won't make any difference."

Lynn rasped, "The boy hasn't an unselfish bone in his body. Mary. . . or a considerate thought."

Mary said, "Please, Lynn, don't make me angry with you. You know that isn't so. He's never given me a moment of anxiety. He's been all any woman could ask her son to be. And he has a right to select his wife and the time and place of his marriage."

After a moment, Lynn announced, "I'm going. . . I'd like to stay here and offer you a shoulder to weep upon. Only you aren't the weeping sort. . . and I know you well enough to feel that you'd rather be alone. Isn't that so?"

"I suppose it is," she said, and gave him her cool, firm hand. "Thanks, and don't think too hard of Mary."

"I'll try, but I suppose it will be a job. But he's your son. He even looks like you, he has your charm. . ."

"And you are very fond of him," said Mary, smiling.

"I am. . . worse luck. How about a wedding present? I suppose a check would be. . . Look here, promise me that the first chance you get, you'll let me meet the new Mrs. Norman."

"I promise."

Mary heard the door close after him, and then went back to the piano and picked up the telegram. She stood there, her lower lip caught in her even small teeth, her shoulders square and her head high. She thought, it wasn't kind of you, Matthew, you might have let me be there.

Then Mary went to the kitchen to tell Kate and Nellie and, finally, escaping from their exclamations and questions, to the telephone to send a wire to Matthew. He would have it when he returned to the hospital. She would word it discreetly but he would understand. She would say: Terribly happy for you, all my love to you both.

Presently she went to her bedroom and made ready for bed. She wouldn't sleep, of course. She was a poor sleeper at best, dating from all the nights she had been up with Matthew as a baby, and later, when he was a schoolboy when she had lain awake, listening for his breathing, getting up often to put a blanket over him, or to remove one. Then when he had gone away to school she hadn't slept, because she was lonely. So she had fallen into the habit of reading in bed, even after coming home from a party, a play.

Mary got into bed, arranged her pillows, and picked up one of the many bright-jacketed books which were at her hand. Kate knocked and came in with the little thermos of hot milk and the plate of crackers. "I know it's early," she said, "but I thought I'd bring it along."

"I'll drink it later. Thank you, Kate."

Kate said, lingering, "We're that excited about the doctor. Nellie's been crying her eyes out. She just can't imagine him being married."

"It's hard for me to imagine too," remarked Mary, "but I'm soon to learn." She added, "And I'm very pleased."

"I told Nellie," Kate said, "that night the young lady—Mrs. Norman, that is—was here. I told her, 'Mark my word, she thinks the world of him.' She stopped, a little embarrassed. Her servants adored Mary Norman, but she had never encouraged familiarity or intimate discussion. 'It's just that we're so excited,' Kate murmured, abashed.

"Of course you are, and so am I," smiled Mary. "I'll tell Dr. Norman. . . on second thought, you can tell him yourself, very soon."

Kate said good night and went from the room. Mary pushed the book aside. She couldn't read. How could she? You couldn't read when you had just learned of your son's marriage any more than you could read there in the waiting room the time he was operated on for appendicitis, or going up to camp the time they called you and told you he was ill.

She thought, if only he's happy. Mary set her jaw, unconsciously. She had never permitted the soft flesh to become slackened and relaxed. You put your best foot and your best face forward in her business. . . . But few people realized how firm her chin was. Years ago, when she was just eighteen—a very short time before she met Tom Norman—her music teacher had looked at her and laughed. He had said, "You have very skillful hands, Mary. But you play with your chin, my dear. . . someday you'll find that out." She had been helpless with laughter, envisaging herself playing with her chin.

Today's Horoscope

The person who has a birthday today is blessed with unlimited ability. You would find success in anything you undertook if you applied all your efforts faithfully. You are upright, have fastidious tastes, and sound judgment; are dependable, loving, enjoy and seek a harmonious life with pleasant surroundings. Minor annoyances through relatives or friends give place to good fortune and more optimistic conditions and greater activity, in the next year. This period is excellent for military and government affairs. The child who is born today will be successful in vocational matters, the perceptions being keen and enterprise strong, although occasional clashes with authority are not unlikely.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, July 12

A CLEVER and considerate understanding of sudden and surprising openings for advancement, highly productive work of important scope and significance is foreseen for today. Properly handled this promising situation may be expected to rise to unforeseen heights of accomplishment with singular levels of good fortune and happiness. There may be peculiar and intriguing situations, together with some trivial annoyances or oppositions. Take time for thought, shun extravagance and impetuosity. There may be want of support from elders or superiors, who should be placated.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have the opportunity of reaching highly desirable objectives by their own cleverness and sagacity. This may be against the definite opposition or lack of support of elders, superiors or those in influential standing, possibly in connection with government affairs. It would be wise to placate these rather than to take a stand of antagonism. There may be other trifling annoyances to meet with good grace and friendly understanding. The forces and faculties may be found keyed to clever performance and tact.

A child born on this day should have excellent latent abilities and intuition for coping with peculiar or involved situations, probably in public affairs.

Pay no attention to that most unorthodox bidding, by a South player in a tournament who was making a strained effort to win an unusual score on this deal. He got away with it, not so much because of his bidding, but because of what he did in the play.

West led the club K, A and 7, which East won with the Q. South could see at the beginning that he was gone if they ever switched to hearts. He managed to prevent this by the sure astute kind of false carding. South in his own mind that West had only three clubs and East five, he decided to make East think his partner held four. This he did by putting the 2 on the first trick, the 6 on the second and then the 10 on the third. Sure enough, he created the illusion that West had held originally the A, K, 8 and 7.

East, to clear the suit, then led the 9 to South's marked J. He expected to see West put the 8 on that trick, setting up his own 5, so that later this card plus the heart A would set the contract.

But West, of course, did not have the club 8, so discarded a small spade. South now had one trick, the club 8 made a Miss Mary Marfield, of East Main street, is the only living member of the original board of managers. When first instituted, the hospital unit was much used by the public.

The institution was removed in July, 1940, to its present location, on East Main street, and is now used only as a home for the aged. Present for the tea from the home were: Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth May Huff, Miss Katherine Gayman, Miss Margaret Steele, Miss Elizabeth Bier, Miss Belle Huber, Miss Florence Radcliff and Miss Lillian Wolfram. Members of the board of managers entertained at the affair were: Mrs. Charles Niles, Mrs. Joe Wilder, Miss Sadie Brunner, Mrs. H. P. Folsom, Mrs. David Dunlap, Mrs. A. D. Newmyer, Mrs. Charles T. Miss Gloria Dean, daughter of Floyd Dean, of 317 East High street, and Corporal Jack T. Simison, son of Mrs. Bessie Simison, of 216 South Pickaway street, were married June 28 in Greenup, Ky. the Rev. Ben R. Hunt officiating at his home. They were accompanied to Kentucky by Miss Barbara Haswell, East High street, and Edwin J. Hill, of near Circleville, petty officer 2/c, U. S. Navy, who were the only attendants at the wedding.

For her wedding, Miss Dean chose a flowered Summer frock and wore green accessories.

The bride, a 1944 graduate of Circleville high school, is living with her father while Corporal Simison is serving with the armed forces. He was graduated in 1942 from Circleville high school and will have been in service two years, next November.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Try this method of cleaning your white leather handbag: Use a white shoe cleaner made by a shoe company. Apply this cream on a wet sponge rubbing well to bring up a lather. After it is thoroughly dry, wipe well with a dry cloth to remove any excess cleaner. The bag will be very white after this treatment.

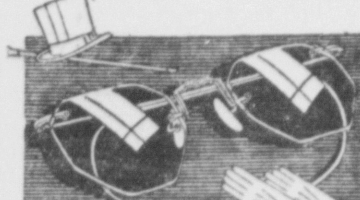

Do not let tarnish stay on silverware, as it may do damage that cannot be repaired. Keep a jar of silver polish by the kitchen sink. At dish-washing time examine forks, knives and spoons for tarnish. Plunge any marked pieces up and down in the silver cream, then wash in hot soapy water. It takes very little time to do this.

A good method of keeping paint off the glass when windows are being painted is to cut squares of newspaper the size of the window panes. Moisten the paper so that it will stick to the glass; then any paint that splatters will go on the paper instead of the glass. The moist paper may easily be removed.

Bits on Books

By Enid Denham

"Here Comes Pete," by Eleanor Clymer is a request book. There are books about children in the country, on the farm, in the city, and here at long last is one about real children who live in a suburb. Pete and Sylvia are typical boy and girl, 5 and 7, and they find many new entertaining friends and adventures in the new environment. So does the goat which Pete acquires from Tony the vegetable man. The climax of the book of course is Pete's sixth birthday party. He wanted all his friends and tried very hard to keep track of those he had invited so his mother would know how many to expect and to prepare for. They arrived by the carload but brought "things," cake, buckets of ice cream, fruit, and a very wonderful time was had by all. For children 8-12.

"Mystery at Star C Ranch," by Hildegarde Hawthorne, tells some of the new adventures of the boys and girls whom we have already met in her "Makeshift Farm." Enley and Zach, Deedah, and Wendy go to visit Ralph St. Clair on his father's big ranch in Wyoming. Here they find all the excitement and happenings they crave, and more. They go on a long horseback trip through the Yellowstone National Park, attend a round-up of cattle, and get all mixed up with cattle thieves. An excellent mystery story for our young 10 to 14 aged mystery fans.

"Crispin's Acres," by Jane Quinn

These books are only a few of the new books on display at the Circleville Public Library's new children's room.

Black marks left on linoleum by rubber heels, baby carriage wheels and the like, may usually be removed by giving them a good rubbing with paste wax. This is often successful where scrubbing with soap and water fails.

ALL STARS OF AMERICAN BOW TO NATIONALS

Explosive Fifth Inning Settles Fate Of Junior League Aggregation

PITTSBURGH, July 12 — In view of what happened, they couldn't have picked a better town for the 12th annual all-star game.

To the experts up in the press box, and particularly those from hide-bound American league cities, the seven-to-one shellacking which the National leaguers delivered at Forbes field last night was at times a woeful exhibition of baseball in the buffoon manner, but to 29,589 paying customers it was a portion of soul-satisfying nectar imbibed under the stars.

Scoring their third successive leap-year triumph and the fourth since the series started in 1933, the Nationals had the best of it in all departments, pitching, hitting and fielding, and made their superiority stick out like a flag-pole on a Pacific atoll.

It was an explosive fifth inning, disastrous for Cecil (Tex) Hughson of Boston, in which the Nationals pounded out their victory, going through the batting order to knock out five hits and score four big runs.

Borowy Routed
 Up to that time, Hank Borowy of the Yankees had kept the Nationals fairly much in check for three innings while batting in his own team's lone run in the second, but Hughson, after retiring the opposition one-two-three in the fourth, broke and was routed in the fifth.

A big seventh inning in which the Nationals scored twice and a rally in the eighth which gave them another score were almost anti-climatic.

Outside of a two-hit second inning, the Yankees showed little hitting power against four National league pitchers, Bucky Walters of the Cincinnati Reds, Ken Raffensberger of Philadelphia, Rip Sewell, the Pirates' star and Jim Tobin of Boston.

Walters let Ken Keltner of Cleveland get a hit to start off the second inning, and Keltner got to third on sacrifice grounders by Bobby Doerr of Boston and Rolly Hemley of the Yanks, from where Borowy drove him in. Then Thurman Tucker of the White Sox grounded out and the Americans' only rally came to a sudden stop.

It was different with the Nationals. Of the American league pitchers only Borowy and Muncief of St. Louis held the Nationals scoreless, but Borowy was in trouble of one fashion or another most of his three innings with men on base at the close of each chapter, while Muncief allowed Connie Ryan of Boston to get to third on a wild pitch in the sixth, and only a close play for the third out at first prevented Ryan from scoring on a

FREE FOR ALL LOOMS AS FUTURITY FAVORITE
 CHICAGO, July 12—Free For All from the stable of John Marsch loomed today as a probable short-lived favorite for Saturday's $25,000 added Arlington futurity at Washington park following his triumph in yesterday's advance guard purse.

Ridden by Otto Grohs, Free For All finished three quarters of a length ahead of his stablemate, Errard. Lt. Edward Lasker's Flood Town from the East finished third in the field of five.

For the winner, it was his third victory in three starts. The time for the five and a half furlongs was 1:06 over a dull track and the Marsch entry paid $2.60 straight. There was no place or show betting. Best Effort finished fourth and Bull Play last.

grounded by Augie Galan of the Dodgers.

Four of the Nationals got two hits each, including First Baseman Phil Cavaretta of the Cubs, who had a perfect evening at bat and almost scored three runs instead of one, but was tagged out twice at home plate.

The other two hitters were Catcher Walker Cooper of St. Louis, Dixie Walker of the Dodgers, and Ryan. Ryan gave the partisan National league crowd a big thrill, also, with a beautiful, leaping one-hand catch of a high liner by Hemsley in the fourth.

The only comparable stunt of the evening was a similar one-hander for the Americans by Vern Stephens of the Browns at shortstop in the seventh while Cavaretta waited on third. Cavaretta scored a few moments later when Kurowski of the Cards sent a hit racing all the way out to the left field wall, scoring Cooper as well.

The bat and ball fund for the men in the nation's armed services was swelled about $100,000 by the game, the first ever to be held in Pittsburgh since the all-star series began.

The fifth inning which saw the doom of the Americans started off with Ryan singling and stealing second. Slaty Marion of the St. Louis Cards fanned but Bill Nicholson of Chicago doubled down the left field line scoring Ryan. Galan's single scored Nicholson. Cavaretta walked, putting Galan on second and Musial filled the bases on McQuinn's miff at first. Cooper and Walker drove in two runs, but Cavaretta was called out sliding into the plate. Muncief went in for Hughson after the fourth run and retired the side on Elliott's high foul to Left Fielder Bob Johnson of Boston.

Pirate Rip Sewell got a big hand from the crowd on his famous "ephus" pitch which he used sparingly.

For the Americans, Stan Spence of Washington, with two hits and with a nice throw to second in that explosive fifth inning in which he pinned down the rampaging Cavaretta, did himself proud for the evening, but ever-optimistic Joe Cronin at first sent Spence to a tag-out at second in the third inning on a bingle which was only good for one base.

Infield of White Sox Fast Becoming Scandal Of American League

PITTSBURGH, July 12—All we know is what a large, lettuce-ear can learn, when alertly cocked behind a novel post in the lobby of the Shenley. But this much seemed definitely established before the annual all-star game was played across the park at Forbes field last night:

That the failure of the Chicago White Sox to make even a pretense of strengthening a Steubenville, O., infield is fast becoming the scandal of their league.

Of course, there are many things gabbled about around an all-star game... exclusive of the game itself, which is seldom mentioned. Baseball, to be specific, never really has wanted the game. And one of the days doubtless it will carefully arrange not to have it.

But when, over and over, the general buzz-buzz of a baseball gathering invariably swings back to one subject, namely the White Sox, you begin to get impressed with its importance. The club, it seems, has fine pitching... even finer than the records show, since practically any ball hit on the ground, and not directly at an infielder, goes into the box score as a base hit.

Webb, the shortstop, "freezes" on defense and can't go anywhere. ... to the right or left, or in or out. Schalk, at second base, is a fair double-A infielder who might be all right with somebody on either side of him. On one side of him now is Webb, and on the other, either Hal Trosky or Ed Carnett.

The latter's a fugitive from the outfield but, at that, he plays more first base than Trosky, who could hardly play less. He probably left the little agility with which he was endowed at birth in doing the chores on his Iowa farm. Oddly enough, as the club was leaving Philadelphia, the manager, Jimmy Dykes, still seemed unconvinced that the timing in Trosky's swing wouldn't return as it had left him—overnight.

Clarke, the third baseman, is what is known as a Woolworth ballplayer. That is, he does all his business on a dime.

All told, it's agreed that this isn't only just the worst infield in the major leagues today. They even say, in order to find it equal, that you have to go the way back to Philadelphia and Connie's conglomeration of 1918, when Mr. Mack sometimes didn't even know the names of his horrid hirelings, and by each nightfall, shunted them out of town too hurriedly for them to tell him.

The Sox, however, have been a contender practically from the first, being only four games out of first place when they started their last eastern trip. This is the trip where the porous character of their infield really began to manifest itself. And people began to ask why the club didn't try to do something about it.

The Sox' eastern trip saw them win only four games out of 14... and the word is that three of these wins were made practically incapable by opponents' errors. In other words, the Sox had only one earned victory to show for the entire trip.

The players, who'd previously been winning on hustle and grade A gall, are now beginning to wonder whether they just aren't knocking themselves silly to no particular purpose.

One of them, in fact, is definitely of the opinion that he's running his shoes into gators, just to help the club pile up a profit. He's being paid so little on his 1944 contract that he claims to be having trouble in meeting his apartment rent.

Meanwhile, there's the Sox phobia about night baseball... their innate belief that they can't win under the lights. This seems to have been rather conclusively sustained by their '44 record of three won in 14 games, but Business Manager Harry Grabner has the perfect answer to that.

He's arranging seven more night games for Comiskey park! (International)

BIRDIES STORM BACK TO DOWN INDIANS 14-4

By International News Service
 Only a downpour of rain the second inning of the afterpiece kept the Milwaukee Brewers from gaining another step on the second-place Columbus Red Birds in the American Association pennant scramble today.

After defeating Minneapolis, 9 to 2, in the opening game, the rampaging Brews lashed out with two runs in the first inning of the second game, which was postponed by a heavy downpour in the second frame.

Home runs by George Binks and Tommy Nelson gave the Milwaukee club its victory in the opening game. Binks, a utility outfielder, hit his fifth circuit smash of the season in the fifth inning with two out and the bases loaded. Nelson recorded his circuit clout in the sixth with two men on.

In the meantime, Columbus stormed back after their humiliating 16 to 6 loss Monday night to defeat the Indianapolis Indians, 14 to 4. Stan Partenheimer, on the mound for the Birds, went all the way to register his 10th win of the campaign.

John Wyrstek, the association's leading hitter, collected three two-baggers to place his season's output at 40. John Antonelli enjoyed a perfect night at bat with 3-for-3.

As a result of last night's action, Milwaukee still leads by seven full games, but second-place Columbus picked up a full game on the Louisville Colonels, who dropped a 2 to 1 decision to the Toledo Mud Hens.

Credited with the victory was lanky Sylvester "Stretch" Goedde, of Vaughnsville. Goedde allowed allowed six hits, and George Diehl, who was the loser, gave up only five.

The Mud Hens also defeated the parent St. Louis Browns of the American League in an exhibition contest. The final score was 6 to 4 in favor of the Hens.

St. Paul's scheduled double-header at Kansas City was postponed on account of rain and will be played today.

HOLMAN WILLIAMS GETS DECISION OVER MARSHALL

WASHINGTON, July 12—Holman Williams, veteran Detroit middleweight, held a split round decision today over Lloyd Marshall, Cleveland, Ohio, battler, before 3,000 fans at Griffith stadium.

Marshall used a two-fisted attack to blast Williams' defensive strategy. The Detroit, however, weathered an eighth round storm which had him hanging on the ropes. There were no knockdowns.

Referee Marty Gallagher and Judge Frank Schuyler voted for Williams, while Judge O. H. Singer called the fight a draw.

raid over enemy territory—and led them himself. At that time, he held the rank of colonel. Several times, planes were almost shot out from under him, but he kept on flying.

Coupled with his daring, "Old Army," as they call Armstrong, had an unusual knack of getting close to his men. They worshipped him.

So General "Hap" Arnold wisely decided to capitalize on this by bringing Armstrong back to the U. S. A., to train the crews which were to undertake the most difficult bombing missions of the war—over industrial Japan.

Knowing that Armstrong might be shot down sooner or later if he insisted on flying with his men over Germany, Arnold ordered "Old Army" home and out to Grand Island, Nebraska. There, above the prairies of Kansas and Nebraska, he has been training the men who raided Japan and who will make many more such raids before the war is over.

COURTING WILLKIE

Backstage maneuvering to inveigle Wendell Willkie into the Dewey camp without actually committing Willkie himself to any principles Willkie stands for, has reached ludicrous dimensions. All sorts of people are acting as alleged go-betweens for Dewey and Willkie—or trying to.

Latest was a weird story that Clare Boothe Luce, comely Congresswoman from Connecticut, had sessioned with Willkie. The story actually got into print—apparently inspired by Albany. But it wasn't true. Here is the real inside on what did happen.

Willkie was week-ending with friends in Connecticut when Mrs. Luce phoned, asking if he could come to her nearby home for a talk. Willkie happened to have other engagements. But even if he hadn't had them, Connecticut political friends got the impression that he was not anxious to talk Dewey politics even with the beautiful Clare.

Anyway, he didn't. But out of Albany ten hours later, came a story that he had seen Mrs. Luce and that she was vamping him into the Dewey corner. The fact that the story came from Albany is considered significant. Obviously, the Dewey camp knew of Mrs. Luce's plan, perhaps inspired it. All of which appears to bear out the opinion of political prognosticators that Willkie can swing about ten percent of the vote whichever way he wants it.

NOTE—Willkie has made it absolutely clear to close friends that he is interested in just one thing—a peace written with such statesmanship that there will never be another war. His political weight will be thrown on the side which offers the greatest promise of that goal.
